

The legend began in the mid-1800s, when a gold rush drew 30,000 adventurers to the West Coast of New Zealand. Thirsty prospectors had over 84 pubs to choose from, but William Monteith's family-owned Phoenix Brewery became the area's most popular. Phoenix Brewery later merged with a group of small breweries to form Westland Breweries, predecessor to today's Monteith's Brewing Company - renowned as New Zealand's original craft brewery.

For over 140 years, Monteith's has stayed true to the authentic processes and recipes of classic beer styles. Monteith's craft beers are made to exacting standards while capturing the spirit of New Zealand's pioneering West Coast.
